* The full quotation (not the selective quote) of the AG's testimony more fairly represents his views about not asking U.S.
Attorney to resign for so-called "political reasons," to wit: "I think I would never, ever make a change in a United States attorney for political reasons or if it would in any way jeopardize an ongoing serious investigation. I just would not do it" (emphasis added).

* The DAG's testimony clarifies that asking Cummins to resign, not because of underperformance, but to permit Griffin to serve, is not a "political reason":

SEN. SCHUMER: . . . So here we have the attorney general adamant; here's his quote, "We would never, ever make a change in the U.S. attorney position for political reasons." Then we have now -- for the first time, we learn that Bud Cummins was asked to leave for no reason and we're putting in someone who has all kinds of political connections -- not disqualifiers, obviously, certainly not legally -- and I'm sure it's been done by other administrations as well. But do you believe that firing a well-performing U.S. attorney to make way for a political operative is not a political reason?

MR. MCNULTY: Yes, I believe that's it's not a political reason.
